> "Compromise" was the cry of those peace nen. Previously they had declared the Missouri Compromise unconstitutional and had quoted high authority to sustain their decision; now they labored hard to pass the Crittenden Compromise, which was substantially the same. They tried to make what they previously called unconstitutional, a part of the Constitution itself, and abused the Republicans for not helping them. The Administration is now abused and ridiculed by the Democratic party, and their cry of "peace," "nigger," "taxes," etc., is calculated to divide the people and keep them from contemplating the deep rime of rebellion, so that they can carry out their wicked schemes. It is well known that Jesse D. Bright, of Indiana was expelled from the Senate of the United States ecause of his traitorous record, yet the Cincinnati Inquirer of October 22d uses

he following language: "It will be remembered that Governor Wright now holds the place, (Senator.) because an Abolition majority in the United States Senate capelled Mr. Bright for no was a Democrat. They had just as much right to expel any other member as Mr. Bright. A Curious Accident and Narrow Escape.

It is stated, in a dispatch from Philadela, that General McClellan disobeyed orders from General Halleck, in consequence of which General Lee escaped, and that this was the immediate cause of his removal. It is known in Washington that General Halleck has for some time been strongly favorable to the change that has been made, but the President was slow to discover the military necessity.
